TONYA LEE WILLIAMS

REELWORLD FOUNDER AND PRESIDENT

As Canadian artists of colour we live in a unique country, where our English culture and our French culture are equally important—where our brothers and sisters from French Canada, face our same struggles. This year at ReelWorld we thought it was time to invite those artists and to have them share their obstacles and achievements with us. How wonderful to live in a truly bilingual country—how enriching for our artistic community!

Also this year ReelWorld wanted to help facilitate the artist that lives inside all of us. Many times with our focus so rooted in diversity, and with our daily struggles to survive and succeed, we can forget to nourish the artist within. This can make us frustrated, angry and limit our creativity. That's why I'm introducing a new component to ReelWorld—Empowering the Artist Within—an opportunity to ground yourselves in the truth of your art and its importance in enlightening the human condition.

Let us remember to praise and give thanks for the opportunity to help the communities around us through our storytelling. Let us remember to honour the gift.

Tonya Lee Williams
ReelWorld Founder and President

EMPOWERING THE ARTIST WITHIN

Thursday, April 20

Rainbow Cinemas Market Square

7:00–9:00 a.m.

“If you are an artist working in the cold hard harsh reality of the film and television industry, then this seminar is for you!”

Do you have feelings of frustration in your ability to succeed as an artist? Does it seem like every road you go down is a dead-end? Are you beginning to doubt your choice in pursuing the path of an artist?

It's important for you to understand what is happening to you and around you, and why it appears you're not getting ahead in your career. The road to success in the entertainment field has been changing dramatically over the past 20 years... we are entering a new age of awareness and the artist MUST be in tune with that or failure is imminent.

Do you understand what your artistic talent is and how it is to serve the community around you? If you have not pondered this question, then you are pursuing an empty goal... one in which you cannot succeed and where chaos lives.

Join me in a two-hour seminar, in an effort to quiet your mind and centre yourself, to travel the new road to success. Let's look at your fears and why they exist... Let's work toward empowering you and awaking your true artistic purpose!

GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CANADA GOUVERNEUR GÉNÉRAL DU CANADA

I am pleased to convey my greetings to all those attending the 6th annual ReelWorld Film Festival.

This festival celebrates the achievements and future successes of emerging film and video makers of multi-ethnic origins. It has become a valued platform for profiling one of Canada's most precious treasures: diversity. ReelWorld is also an important way of highlighting the major role that visible minorities play in the Canadian entertainment industry.

It is with great pride that I congratulate the winners in each category. I would also like to commend the organizers for their foresight in providing Canadians with opportunities to learn more about Canada's diverse talents. I wish everyone an enjoyable festival.

Je suis ravie d'adresser mes meilleures salutations à toutes celles et à tous ceux qui assistent à la 6me édition annuelle du festival ReelWorld.

Ce festival cinématographique célèbre les réalisations et les succès futurs de cinéastes et de vidéastes émergents, issus de différents milieux ethniques. Cet événement est devenu une tribune permettant de faire valoir la diversité, qui est certes l'une des plus précieuses richesses du Canada. ReelWorld, c'est aussi une manière remarquable de mettre en lumière le rôle majeur que jouent les minorités visibles dans l'industrie canadienne du divertissement.

C'est avec la plus grande fierté que je félicite les lauréates et les lauréats dans chaque catégorie de prix. Je tiens également à souligner la perspicacité des organisateurs qui fournissent ainsi aux Canadiennes et aux Canadiens l'occasion de mieux connaître le grand éventail des talents que possède notre pays. Je souhaite donc à tous de bien profiter de ce festival.

Michaëlle Jean

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF ONTARIO

As The Queen's representative in Ontario, I am pleased to extend sincere greetings to everyone participating in the 6th annual ReelWorld Film Festival.

Founded in 2001 by renowned actress Tonya Lee Williams, the festival was designed to be an avenue by which Canada's diverse cultures could easily display its cinematic genius. The festival is unique in that it is the only one of its kind in Canada to be started by an actor. The ReelWorld Film Festival has allowed Canadians to see their diversity projected on the silver screen in a way that has not been offered before. It has also brought about many new opportunities to the stars and filmmakers it has featured. Being a great fan of movies myself, I am very happy to see such a unique festival thrive in our community.

On behalf of The Queen of Canada, I extend my best wishes for a fun and successful ReelWorld Film Festival.

Enjoy the festival!

James K. Bartleman

TELEFILM CANADA TÉLÉFILM CANADA

From urban life and dramatic landscapes to inspiring heroes and personal struggles, all this — and more — makes for distinctive Canadian storytelling. Fittingly, ReelWorld has put together a diverse program of works that spotlights Canada, and other cultures from around the world.

Part of celebrating outstanding Canadian productions is also recognizing the talent behind them, and ReelWorld plays a valuable role in showcasing Canada's creators and their productions. Canadian film continues to evolve as an art form that remains vibrant and alive by relying on the energies and ingenuity of a new generation. For these very reasons, and in the spirit of our commitment as cultural investor to help Canadian works reach audiences, Telefilm Canada is a proud sponsor of this festival.

On behalf of the Board of Directors and staff of Telefilm, I would like to extend a warm welcome to you and invite you to discover what Canadian cinema has to offer. Congratulations to the organizers, volunteers and community whose hard work has helped make the 6th edition of the ReelWorld Film Festival possible.

Vie urbaine, paysages de toute beauté, héros inspirants ou personnages confrontés à des défis personnels, tout ceci caractérise les histoires du Canada, qui offrent plus encore. Le ReelWorld Film Festival propose un programme diversifié d'œuvres d'ici qui mettent en valeur le Canada et bien d'autres cultures du monde.

Célébrer les productions canadiennes d'exception, c'est aussi reconnaître le talent de leurs créateurs. Ce festival joue un rôle de premier plan dans la mise en valeur des créateurs canadiens et de leurs productions. Le cinéma canadien continue d'évoluer, expression artistique sensible et vivante puisant à même l'énergie et l'esprit d'innovation de la nouvelle génération. ## CANADIAN RACE RELATIONS FOUNDATION (CRRF)

On behalf of the Board and Staff of the Canadian Race Relations Foundation, I am pleased to extend congratulations and best wishes for the 6th annual ReelWorld Film Festival. Congratulations also to Ms Williams and the members of the Boards of the Festival and the Foundation for their vision in establishing this unique film festival.

As an organization that is dedicated to the elimination of racism, the CRRF recognizes the enormous value and potential of films and videos in the telling of stories. These stories can, and often do, dramatically illustrate racism and its impact. The ReelWorld Film Festival also offers the real opportunity for racialized filmmakers to showcase their work, which, in turn, allows them to be their own storytellers.

We sincerely hope that the ReelWorld Film Festival will continue to grow and thrive, providing successes for racialized filmmakers and be a source of encouragement for those who want to work in the field.

Again, congratulations and best wishes for a successful festival.

Yours truly,

Andrée Ménard, M.S.M.
Acting Chair

DIRECTOR, REELWORLD FILM FESTIVAL & FOUNDATION

Welcome one and all to the 6th annual ReelWorld Film Festival, Toronto's premiere spring festival that celebrates Diversity and Excellence in Film and Video. It's been five months since I joined the organization and daily I continue to be awed by the creativity, dedication and hard work of our staff. I am eternally grateful to each and everyone of them for their role in creating a truly unique and brilliant event, ReelWorld Film Festival.

ReelWorld Film Festival and Foundation's time has come. Cultural and racial diversity is a fact of life not only in Canada but in many other countries around the world. By continuing to create opportunities for filmmakers of diversity through screenings and professional development, ReelWorld is fulfilling its mandate. Furthermore, ReelWorld is facilitating greater access for filmmakers of diversity, to all sectors of Canada's film and television industry, so that it better reflects Canada's growing diverse population.

Like most not-for-profit organizations, we experience our fair share of challenges. However, we continue to overcome them with the ongoing support of our sponsors, our Boards of Directors, our volunteers and the considerable contribution of ReelWorld's founder, Tonya Lee Williams. Thank you all.

With over 100 films scheduled, there is an eclectic and exciting lineup of features, documentaries, shorts and music videos. May you be inspired, transported and entertained by the wonderful stories, vibrant music and spectacular images of diversity.

Enjoy the festival!

FILM PROGRAMMING DIRECTOR

Bienvenue! This year is a special year. We are celebrating not only our 6th anniversary but also the importance of language in cinema. Not only with words, but with the other complex elements of pictures, movement, drama and music; each speaks a different language and each is equally important to the enjoyment of film.

This year our special focus is La Francophonie, the French language and its contribution to ethnic diverse voices. Generally speaking, the world has become a much smaller place. Language, culture and art are blending with new voices and new directions; forever becoming more and more apparent in places where many would never expect to look. Simply put, the world is more diverse.

This is reflected in our programming this year, with over 100 films presented and over 100 voices heard. We have travelled the world to bring contemporary stories; from Cuba to South Korea and locales such as Morocco, Iran, Rio de Janeiro, Vancouver, Paris, Nigeria, London, Montreal and Toronto.

Since 9/11, it has become increasingly clear that we all need more information and insight about the rest of the world. Through language comes discourse, and with each stop we make, together we will be introduced to fresh voices and vibrant textures and stories that arise from disparate cultures and societies. As we continue to bring you such exciting programming, we are happy that you can join us once again.

INDUSTRY SERIES DIRECTOR

This year's Industry Series offers not only informative panels, but also hands-on workshops and a new $2,500 Pitch contest to support feature film development. Over two days, seasoned and emerging filmmakers learn from industry leaders all aspects of film production, including screenwriting, directing, financing, casting and acting in both dramas and documentaries.

To bring filmmakers even closer to the industry, ReelWorld is launching the Face to Face lounge, presented by CBC Television. FTF allows filmmakers to receive mentoring, pitch projects, and establish long-term relationships with Canada's key distributors, buyers and funders in exclusive one-on-one meetings.

This year's ReelSpeaks feature an intimate conversation with legendary Aboriginal-Canadian actor Graham Greene who will discuss his career, including his Oscar-nominated role in Dances With Wolves. CBC Television presents a panel featuring the cast and creators of Dragon Boys, an exciting new mini-series that examines the tensions and complexities that arise within the multi-ethnic tapestry of contemporary west coast Canadian life. Join them as they share insights into the making of the film and discuss the issue of cross-cultural representation.

For film lovers of all ages, ReelWorld's Industry Series continues to educate and inspire filmmakers. Let it roll...

Where were you born?

Vancouver, B.C.

Where do you live?

Toronto, Ontario

What are you currently working on?

Documentary called Invisible City that deals with racial profiling and a feature script.

What past project are you most proud of?

Hardwood, my first film because it was very personal and its positive effect on other people.

What is your raison d'être (i.e. what makes you tick)?

I don't know if it's what makes me tick, but what keeps me going is a love for films.

What are you doing to make a difference?

Trying to tell stories that are not usually told in the mainstream.

How do you envision your role in the future of Canada's film or TV industry?

I think my role is to just try and continue to make personal films that hopefully resonate with people.

What challenges have you encountered in your career?

Like any other young filmmaker my biggest challenge was trying to get others to believe that I was capable of making a good film.

How did you overcome?

Persistence.

Who do you respect the most in the industry?

I really respect Deepa Mehta.

Why?

She's a courageous and talented filmmaker who doesn't back down from anything in order to see her vision through.

Any words of wisdom for those who will follow in your footsteps?

Never give up.

Have you ever had a magical festival moment where meeting someone resulted in a new partnership or production opportunity? Please tell us about it.

I think one of the most magical festival moments I had didn't result in a new partnership, but last year I was accepting an award for Hardwood at the Tree of Life Awards in Los Angeles just before the 2005 Oscars. Spike Lee was there, and he was a big inspiration for me when I was younger. I got a chance in my speech to thank him. Obviously, it meant a lot more to me than to him, but it was still a great moment for me.

What past project are you most proud of?

Besides my children? Singing Our Stories, I guess. And some of the music I have composed and stories I have written.

What is your raison d'être (i.e. what makes you tick)?

Solitude, love, laughter, family and friends, not in that order necessarily.

What are you doing to make a difference?

Listening.

How do you envision your role in the future of Canada's film or TV industry?

Paid as a listener, lots of money.

What challenges have you encountered in your career?

Trying to listen to people who have nothing to say.

How did you overcome?

Sat quietly and pretended I was listening.

Who do you respect the most in the industry?

People who can slow down and take the time to be real.

Any words of wisdom for those who will follow in your footsteps?

Raise a teenager if you can, that prepares you for almost anything or anybody.

Have you ever had a magical festival moment where meeting someone resulted in a new partnership or production opportunity? Please tell us about it.

Every project is filled with "magical" moments. The festival celebration is part of it. I was really shy at first to go to film festivals, but I soon got the hang of it ... a great party, in a matching outfit, on a good hair day, hopefully. But really, for me? It's not about the awards, it's about the rewards.

What past project are you most proud of?

I'm proud of all my projects in the sense that each one presented me with different challenges that I had to overcome. However, completing my fourth-year student film at Ryerson showed me that maybe I could do this.

Where were you born?

Toronto, Ontario

Where do you live?

Downtown Toronto, Entertainment District

What are you currently working on?

Marketing my short film, By Charlie Walker, which was produced with the OMDC AI Waxman Calling Card Grant, and programming at the BANFF World Television Festival.

What past project are you most proud of?

Our short film, Raju's Blind Date, which premiered at ReelWorld in 2002. It was selected as part of a ReelWorld-CBC Radio pilot project last year to adapt short films for radio. We had such great audience feedback that the CBC commissioned five more episodes which should be airing in spring 2006.

What is your raison d'être (i.e. what makes you tick)?

Entertaining people. Lifting them out of their lives and making them see, hear, feel, and live another reality for a brief moment.

What are you doing to make a difference?

I was the chair of ACTRA's Diversity Committee for the past two years. In that time we launched the revamped "Mainstream Now!" catalogue of diverse performers as a tool for casting directors and producers both, in Canada, and the United States. Having been recently elected to the council of ACTRA Toronto, I plan on continuing to fight for strengthening our Canadian film & TV industry and embracing our greatest asset in that fight—our cultural diversity

How do you envision your role in the future of Canada's film or TV industry?

As a creator of films that entertain and uplift.

What challenges have you encountered in your career?

Being defined by my ethnicity—i.e. being seen for roles where I am the 'Indian' character.

How did you overcome?

I choose to produce projects where the race or ethnicity of the characters I play is irrelevant. I refuse to take on projects that are stereotypical in nature

Who do you respect the most in the industry?

Drew Barrymore and Reese Witherspoon

Why?

As young actors they weren't getting the types of roles they wanted so, instead of complaining about it they became proactive and created their own production companies. That's been my M.O. as well.

Any words of wisdom for those who will follow in your footsteps?

Lots of people will tell you, "you can't" so surround yourself with people who say, "you can." If you're not happy with your life or your career, take control. Don't be a puppet controlled by the industry. Opportunity rarely comes knocking so go out and create your own success.

Have you ever had a magical festival moment where meeting someone resulted in a new partnership or production opportunity? Please tell us about it.

I met some of the cast and crew of Raju's Blind Date at the inaugural ReelWorld Film Festival. The next year we had the completed film. It all started and came full circle at ReelWorld.

For drama writers & actors

Witness a table reading by the country's diverse leading actors. The screenwriter will direct the reading then actors will offer their professional opinions on the script. An invaluable workshop for any writer wishing to conduct his/her own table reading, and for filmmakers and actors alike to witness the process of how performers can shape a screenplay.

SONG OF SILENCE

Winner of the 2004 Slamdance Screenplay Competition and the 2004 Sparky Award for Best Screenplay

Set during World War Two, Song of Silence is a powerful story of a young Korean girl who volunteers to sew uniforms for the Japanese military to save her family. However, she discovers that she's become one of 200,000 girls and women forced into sexual slavery as a "comfort woman" to Japanese troops. Faced with unspeakable physical and emotional hardship, she ultimately triumphs. This screenplay opens a door to a shameful episode in history, of which the Japanese government still denies responsibility.

KAMATAKI

CLAUDE GAGNON

When we first are introduced to Ken, a Canadian in his early 20s, he has recently survived a suicide attempt that was motivated by the sudden death of his father. Ken's mother packs him up and sends him off to Japan to apprentice for his uncle, Takuma, a renowned potter. At first Ken is wary and resentful. After several incidents, including a car crash, Ken's attitude changes: he takes an increased and sustained interest in his uncle's work.

Kamataki is about redemption and knowledge, in which the stakes are not spelled out but must be sorted out by the viewer using his or her own understanding of art and eroticism in human life. This easily parallels the actual art of pottery-making known as Kamataki — a very tough but exhilarating process that enchants with its shift from dynamic to calm moments that will for surely grip you.

Gagnon avoids the clichés to which the theme of the relationship between a wise Asian artist and a rudderless Western youth might have invited him. What makes this treatment of the theme surprising is that the two men seem at first to have so little in common, so little need for each other, and so little potential to stimulate each other. As a result, it's with all the more interest and pleasure that we watch the tensions in their relationship become productive. With that said, it is no wonder why Gagnon won the Fipresci International Film Critic and People's Choice awards at the 2005 Montreal World Film Festival.

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Claude Gagnon is an award-winning filmmaker with a career that spans almost 30 years. He made his first feature, Keiko, in Japan in 1979. After returning to Canada in the 1980s, he founded Aska Films, and produced The Kid Brother, which received awards at the Berlin and Montreal film festivals. He wrote and directed Kamataki in Japan.

DAL KOM HAN IN-SAENG (A Bittersweet Life)

KIM JEE-WOON

Dal kom han In-saeng (A Bittersweet Life) begins with a gorgeous image of a willow tree tossing in the breeze. As colour slowly bleeds into the frame, the voice of Sun-woo is heard: "On a clear spring day, a disciple looked at some branches blowing in the wind, and asked, 'Master, is it the branches that are moving, or the wind?' Without even looking to where his pupil was pointing, the teacher smiled and said, 'That which moves is neither the branches nor the wind, it is your heart and mind.'"

This is no ordinary proverb and Sun-woo is no ordinary hotel manager. Quick-thinking and efficient, he's also the right hand man of underworld boss Kang. But Kang has a weakness: his girlfriend Heesoo. Suspecting she's unfaithful, Kang orders Sun-woo to look into the problem. But when Kang's suspicions are confirmed, Sun-woo discovers he is unable to follow through with a kill. This infuriates Kang who swiftly sends his gang members after Sun-woo. By some miracle of will, Sun-woo battles the gang alone, killing them one by one — each kill bringing him one step closer to Kang.

Dal kom han In-saeng (A Bittersweet Life) is reminiscent of Oldboy, The Professional and Kill Bill: Vol 1 & 2, all rolled into one. But don't let those comparisons throw you, as this film still creates something original, with its great mix of romance, raw emotion, wicked humour and drama, intertwined with a great deal of violence, action, blood and darkness.

UNAKULUK, CHER PETIT (Unakuluk, Dear Little One)

MARIE-HÉLÈNE COUSINEAU, MARY KUNUK

Ce documentaire se passe à Igloolik, une petite île au sud-ouest de l'île de Baffin dans l'Arctique. La cinéaste qui a demeuré et travaillé à Igloolik pendant de nombreuses années, se sert de sa propre expérience d'adoption d'un enfant inuit, comme base pour ce film. Dans la culture inuit, l'adoption est chose commune. On lui offre une couverture traditionnelle en feutre représentant les moments distincts de l'adoption. Ceci est entrelacé tout au long du film. Elle fait passer des entrevues aux familles et aux amis qui ont fait l'expérience de l'adoption, gravant ainsi leurs histoires personnelles. Le train languoureux du film accentue l'atmosphère du Grand Nord.

This documentary takes place in Igloolik, a small island southwest of Baffin Island in the Arctic. One of the filmmakers, who has lived and worked for many years in Igloolik, uses her own experience of adopting an Inuit child as the basis of the film. In Inuit culture, adopting is common place. She is offered a traditional felt blanket, which represents distinctive moments of the adoption which is beautifully interwoven throughout the film. She interviews relatives and friends whom have all experienced adoption in one way or another, thus recording personal histories. The slow pace of the film accentuates the way of life up North.

Programmed by: Karin Hazé

Marie-Hélène Cousineau is the co-founder of Arnait Video Productions, a collective of women working in Igloolik, Nunavut. She has been a video producer, director and editor since 1988. # BARRIO CUBA

HUMBERTO SOLÁS

In this touching story, director Humberto Solás invites audiences into the Havana he knows best — one that few tourists will ever see. Against a backdrop of crumbling buildings and rickety structures that result from 40 years of U.S. embargo, Barrio Cuba shares the complex stories of seven courageous people whose lives are woven by a mosaic of events and emotions.

Nurse Magalis is the target of unwanted romantic approaches from aging timber yard worker Ignacio. After he cuts himself while watching her cycle past, he's admitted to the hospital, where she must tend to him; the sexually passionate relationship between trucker El Chino and pharmacy worker Vivian becomes unexpectedly strained; the pregnant Maria returns to Havana to live with her husband, Santo, and his mother, Amparo, but the family suffers an unfathomable loss.

Throughout their personal journeys, each character strives to find happiness in poor Havana. They live life to the fullest and search for a way out, but the harsh reality of the barrio challenges them. Yet despite their individual hardships, they never lose hope for a better future, for regaining a lost love or for finding a new one.

Barrio Cuba won the Special Jury Prize at the 27th Havana International Festival of New Latin American Cinema, and a Special Jury Mention and the Audience Prize at the Huelva Film Festival.

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Humberto Solás is one of the founders of New Latin American Cinema. His films have screened to great acclaim at festivals such as Cannes, Venice, Moscow, Havana, Sundance and San Sebastián. # BOY CALLED TWIST

TIM GREENE

The original Oliver Twist by Charles Dickens gets a modern-day makeover in Tim Greene's Boy Called Twist. Only this time, the story takes place in the poor streets of Cape Town and not jolly old London. Staying true to the original characters, you'll recognize Dodger, Monk, Fagin and, of course, Twist, as he struggles to find his place in the world. Greene's gritty honesty and the cast's vibrant performances bring Boy Called Twist to life on the screen.

In the opening sequence, Twist's mother dies in childbirth in the middle of nowhere. Fearing blame, the locals bury her in an unmarked grave and drop the baby at a rural orphanage, where he is neglected and mistreated. As soon as he is old enough, Twist escapes to the city and gets caught up in a network of child pickpockets to survive. What ensues is Twist's harrowing search for love, identity, roots, understanding and family.

Greene pulled no stops to find financing for the film. He stood at traffic lights in at the beginning of 2003 with a sign that read: "Hi my name is Tim, I am an independent filmmaker. I have written this film called Boy Called Twist and I am looking for 1,000 investors with R1,000 ($184 CAD) to spare. Please help." Definitely unconventional, but very effective; by the end of May 2003, he had his investors.

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Tim Greene began his filmmaking career in 1994 with the acclaimed short, Corner Caffie. Since then the South African filmmaker has directed music videos for bands such as The Honeymoon Suites and Just Ginger as well as commercials and episodes of TV. His second short film is Kap 'an, Driver. Boy Called Twist is his first feature film.

FILHAS DO VENTO (Daughters of the Wind)

JOEL ZITO ARAÚJO

In a world of choices and consequences, Filhas do Vento tells the stories of two sisters who lead polar opposite lives and are reunited at their father's funeral after a long and painful separation. Weaving back and forth between contemporary time and the 1960s and '70s, the two women confront past hurts. The film touches upon themes pertinent to women everywhere, but in small-town Brazil, the ghosts of slavery and racism linger and affect the characters' lives in subtle ways. Can the two sisters forgive each other and move on?

Assembling the largest cast of black actors ever seen in a Brazilian film, this first fiction feature by acclaimed documentarian Araújo, is a moving and complex story about redemption between sisters, mothers and daughters. Wonderfully cast with moving performances full of raw emotion and shot against the stunning backdrop of Brazil, Filhas do Vento is a film that will stay with you long after you have left the theatre.

Filhas do Vento won the Golden Kikito Award for Best Actor, Best Actress, Best Supporting Actor, Best Supporting Actress and Best Director at the 2005 Gramado Film Festival in Brazil as well as the Kikito Critics Prize for Best Film.

FLIP THE SCRIPT

TERRAH BENNETT SMITH

Writer/executive producer Tiayoka McMillan's first script, Flip the Script, is a fun and exciting romantic comedy that reminds us that good friends don't always make good lovers. But if you have it bad for one special friend, there's no other choice but to mix it up and play the game.

Dr. Preston Scott, a successful gynecologist, is shocked when he learns about his friend Lucky's tragic death. In planning a memorial service to honour Lucky's life, Preston reunites with a group of friends including his ex-girlfriend Rain Jones.

In an attempt to one-up Preston, Rain pretends that she's engaged to the man of her dreams. Not to be outdone, Preston tells her that he's found the perfect woman. During their weekend together, comical misunderstandings abound between Preston and Rain. Eventually, they are forced to face the fact that old feelings die hard.

Meanwhile, the group becomes close again and they share laughter, tears and joy, while re-discovering the true meaning of friendship.

GRAIN IN EAR

ZHANG LU

Director Zhang Lu's second feature, Grain in Ear, is the touching story of Soon-hee, a single mother of Korean descent who makes her living by selling kimchi on the streets of a small town in Northern China.

On the surface, Grain in Ear deals with the interplay of dichotomies in modern China: men and women, rich and poor, good and bad, repression and freedom, stasis and movement. But Lu's film delves much deeper than that. Soon-hee is struggling to raise her young son on her own. She sells the kimchi illegally, so she must meet her customers at obscure locations throughout town to avoid being caught by the police. Soon-hee lives in a tiny subdivided house and four young Chinese women, all prostitutes, share the space with her. Different individuals, particularly men, often visit the premises, each with their own agendas.

Grain in Ear is a wonderfully slow-paced film where Zhang demonstrates vividly how stereotypes affect us, how views are imposed upon us and how difficult it can be to expunge ourselves from assumptions. And even more frightening, how we are sometimes forced to give in to these stereotypes.

In Grain in Ear, Zhang artfully complicates personal relationships so that sex, economics and social class become inter-related and inseparable, and Soon-hee is forced to commit an awful equalizing act; albeit one that puts her on the same level as her previous oppressors.

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Zhang Lu began his career as a screenwriter and eventually moved into directing. He completed his first short film, Eleven, in 2001. Eleven was invited to several international film festivals including Venice, Toronto and Pusan, and paved the way to Zhang shooting his first feature, Tang Poetry, in 2004.

HOW THE GARCIA GIRLS SPENT THEIR SUMMER

GEOGINA GARCIA RIEDEL

When Dona Genoveva, the Garcia family matriarch, purchases a car, she sets off a chain of events that lead to a sexual revolution within her family, from her middle-aged daughter to her teenage granddaughter Blanca.

The 70-year-old grandmother catches her family completely off guard by purchasing an old car after a lifetime of never having driven. When Don Pedro, a gardener from the neighbourhood, offers to give Dona Genoveva driving lessons, sexual feelings awaken in her after years of widowhood, which followed a longtime loveless marriage. Rosa her daughter, meanwhile, is a divorcee coping with loneliness and attempting to fend off her attraction to married playboy Victor, who is determinedly pursuing her. At the same time, Blanca's budding sexuality is being tested with the arrival of the town's newcomer Sal.

First-time Latin director Georgina Garcia Riedel's comedy How the Garcia Girls Spent Their Summer stars Lucy Gallardo, Elizabeth Peña, and America Ferrera as three generations of Mexican-American women in a family during one hot summer in the small border town of Somerton, Arizona.

Riedel weaves her three plot strands together with ease. Seldom has sexual desire by women found its way to the screen with such poignancy and power. The tenderness with which Riedel shows the lives of the Garcia girls however, is all the more refreshing at a time when cinema seemingly explores every side of sexuality, except that of love

IQBAL

NAGESH KUKUNOOR

Nagesh Kukunoor's Iqbal is ultimately a tale of triumph and strength told through a variety of characters that live in a remote Indian village. The story revolves around Iqbal, a deaf and mute boy who dreams of becoming a famous cricket player. He practices on his father's farm almost daily and he has natural talent, but without formal training, how will he ever be ready to play in prestigious national tournaments? Fortunately for him, fate intervenes in the form of a washed up drunk. It seems unlikely at first that this odd character can actually help Iqbal work toward his dream, but he has a secret that no one knows.

Kukunoor gives plenty of special twists and turns to his wonderfully created characters so that audiences immediately feel close to them in their personal journeys. Destiny, fortitude and diligence are part of the underlying message of this film, but most of all, it's about learning to give life a spin just as Iqbal does with his cricket ball. Each time Iqbal spins the ball, the screen lights up with a glorious sense of optimism and a little cinematic magic to go with it. It is hugely entertaining and will warm your heart.

Iqbal has been nominated for countless awards in India, and won three Zee Cine Awards for Best Film, Best Actor and Best Actress.

Programmed by: Mohit Rajhans

Nagesh Kukunoor's debut film, Hyderabad Blues, is the highest grossing low-budget Indian film shot in English. With its success, Nagesh has created a new genre in Indian cinema — the low-budget film that breaks the barrier between commercial and art cinema. His other films include Rockford, Bollywood Calling and 3 Deewarein.

JOHNNY TOOTALL

SHIRLEY CHEECHOO

Johnny Tootall, a soldier who seems to carry the weight of a war on his shoulders, finds himself discharged from the Bosnian War and on his way back to Canada with a dark and frightening secret. But before his boots can stand firmly on Canadian soil he is dragged into yet another war — a war between his family and a local logging company. Being the oldest male of the family Johnny must step up and assume leadership, but lost love, a wolf and dark memories of abandonment plague him and distort his perception of the truth.

Johnny Tootall is the story of a spiritual quest for discovery and a rite of passage to reclaiming your own power. Set on the west coast of Vancouver Island, the story unfolds in Nu chah nulth territories, the land of mist and legends, where the wolf is sacred and becomes the guide in a young man's rite of passage.

Written and directed by Shirley Cheechoo, the film explores rebirth and uses the continuous environmental slaughtering of the trees as the backdrop for Johnny's journey. The roadblock in the film mirrors similar situations currently underway in native territories throughout British Columbia. In many ways,

Johnny Tootall is an inspiring tale for those who support a greener world!

POET OF THE WASTES

MOHAMMED AHMADI

With an off-the-cuff, conceptual screenplay by Mohsen Makhmalbaf, the grandfather of Iranian cinema, comes the remarkable debut from director Mohammad Ahmadi. Unusual fare from Tehran, Poet of the Wastes steers absolutely clear of political commentary.

The protagonist, a self-conceived street cleaner/fortune teller, skillfully portrayed by Farzin Mohades, collects what others have discarded, and in so doing, takes us on a romantic adventure where he encounters a beautiful girl and a poet.

Initially intrigued and attracted to the girl through her discarded letters that reveal her private problems, he becomes enamoured by her beauty. He follows her, all the while sweeping the streets of the city, but he never dares to contact her and declare his love. His only form of satisfaction comes from his daily morning talks with the poet he admires — that is until the day he discovers the poet's dead body. Has the poet been murdered or has he committed suicide? The question remains open.

But beyond that question, we are also left to ponder the old saying about "one man's trash..." Is it really another man's treasure?

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Mohammad Ahmadi started his career in cinema by working in the film production unit of Tehran's artistic centre of the Islamic Advertisement Organization in 1989. In 1991, he graduated from Tehran's Fine Arts University. Ahmadi has been the manager of photography and advertising at Iran's Handicraft Organization for the last 10 years.

RAG TAG

ADAORA NWANDU

Raymond, aka Rag, and Tagbo, aka Tag, have been friends since they were children. They come from very different backgrounds: Rag comes from a single-parent West Indian home. Tag, meanwhile, comes from a middle-class Nigerian family. As children, their bond is unbreakable, but as teens, Social Services takes Rag to London and the friendship is torn apart. Skip ahead 10 years; the young men have reunited, but now, everything is different. As both struggle with social issues surrounding jobs and relationships, they each take comfort in their childhood union.

However, their relationship has shifted into something more urgent and consuming. Unlike the innocent connection they shared as children, they now face a barrage of complications: Tag's father disapproves of Rag, while Rag disapproves of Tag's close friend Olisa. This is a film about true love, friendship, family and truly brings to life a relationship that epitomizes the very definition of "diversity." Will their friendship crumble with the pressure that surrounds it, or will it somehow overcome the odds and survive? Adaora Nwandu sensitively depicts the ups and downs of this universally identifiable situation. The result is a touching film about a complicated connection between two young men.

THE ZERO SUM

RAPHAEL ASSAF

Leonard works as a waiter, but at night, becomes a thief. When his actions inadvertently land his brother Patrick behind bars, Leonard becomes obsessed with trying to raise the money to set him free.

After stealing from literary agent Leah, he uses her personal information to track her down and then approaches her in order to sell his brother's unpublished novel. But what are the real reasons behind Leonard's actions? Is he trying to repent his crimes, or does he have an ulterior motive?

Much more than a standard crime drama, The Zero Sum offers a fascinating portrait of an unpredictable man who lies his way through life. We are constantly asking ourselves if Leonard is manipulating those around him or if, in fact, he is ready to abandon his dishonest past in favor of a truthful future. Portrayed with unnerving duality by Trainspotting co-star Ewen Bremner, Leonard is a unique and layered protagonist who guides us through the twists and turns of this suspenseful Canadian film.

A VERY BRITISH BOLLYWOOD

ANTHONY WONKE

The global impact of the Indian film industry is being felt with insightful documentaries that are beginning to expose an underbelly of the business, which is compelling and provocative. When Jag Mundra formed his British/Indian film venture, his aim was to create content that would bring a different flavour to India and make entirely different types of films. In this racy, explicit and controversial piece, audiences are forced to come to terms with the fact that Bollywood now comes in all different forms and Indian filmmakers are creating their own formulas.

The doc also gives you a glimpse of Anthony Wonke's newest venture, which premiered at Cannes earlier this year and stars Ashwariya Rai.

BETWEEN: LIVING IN THE HYPHEN

ANNE MARIE NAKAGAWA

Between: Living in the Hyphen interweaves the experiences of a group of Canadians with one parent from a European background and one from a visible minority. They're all struggling to find a satisfying frame of reference. Cultural identity, it seems, is more complex than what our multicultural utopia implies.

Seven individuals share stories of being multi-ethnic in a world that wants to put each person into a single category. Among them are award-winning poet Fred Wah, who recalls being told by his elementary teacher that he was Chinese, even though his background also includes Irish, Scottish and Swedish ancestry. When visiting China, however, he finds that he is not accepted as Chinese because he is mixed. Shannon Waters, is questioned for participating in the First Nations Family Practice program. Although she chooses to identify with her Aboriginal ancestry, her connection with that background is challenged because of her appearance.

As globalization increasingly blurs borders, Between: Living in the Hyphen offers a provocative glimpse of what the future holds: a movement away from hyphens and "pure" bloodlines, toward a celebration of fluidity, hybridity and being mixed.

Programmed by: Randy Shek

Anne Marie Nakagawa is currently working toward a Master of Fine Arts degree in photography at the University of Calgary. Her involvement in film and video began in New York City where she studied illustration at Parsons School of Design. While there, she acted as graphic artist and art director for various student film productions. ## CHINESE RESTAURANTS: BEYOND FRONTIERS

CHEUK KWAN

The immigrant experience has traditionally been chronicled with the idea that people have left their mother countries for a better experience. In Chinese Restaurants: Beyond Frontiers, director Cheuk Kwan takes this notion to another level by showcasing the global impact of Chinese culture on the world's palate. With this journey, not only do we feel as if the world is filled with diversity, but the viewers will also appreciate the determination and strength that many settlers continue to exhibit while trying to exist in their new society. Chinese Restaurants: Beyond Frontiers is the type of documentary, that may make you hungry while it leaves a taste of how the world is a changing place.

CRICKET AND THE MEANING OF LIFE

SANJAY TALREJA

The first law of cricket: "It must be played in the spirit of the game; honesty, integrity, courage, fair play, gentlemanliness. So much more than a game; it's a code to live by." With these words, filmmaker Sanjay Talreja guides us into the world of immigrant cricket in Toronto: cricket as a way of life.

Leaving a life in Bombay behind, Talreja, being a stranger in a strange land, found connections with other South Asian expatriates through the very British game of cricket. To his delight, he found out that there are over 20,000 people in Toronto playing "immigrant cricket," with teams as diverse as those affiliating with political parties in Pakistan and a team of South African Muslims who now help asylum seekers from India. Players are of all hues and colours, except white.

Cricket and the Meaning of Life follows the story of the Toronto Cricket Academy's first foray abroad to play in Trinidad, the heartland of Caribbean cricket. We share the challenges, hopes and dreams of this team led by its Grade-12 captain and its nine-year-old prodigy. Unlike ordinary sports documentaries, the filmmaker's intimate personal touch and the commentator's outstanding on-camera performances bring the drama, history and spirit of cricket to life. Cricket and the Meaning of Life is a refreshing antidote to hockey-obsessed Canada.

Programmed by: Mohit Rajhans

Sanjay Talreja worked as a script writer, assistant producer and director in his native India before coming to North America. Now based in Toronto, his work focuses on social justice and themes of migration, identity and development. He has a Master of Fine Arts in film from Ohio University and teaches at the University of Windsor.

FAVELA RISING

JEFF ZIMBALIST, MATT MOCHARY

Favela Rising takes place in the grim reality of Vigario Geral, the worst of Rio de Janeiro's urban slums. In August 1993, the police brutally massacred 21 residents in revenge for the slaying of four police officers by a Vigario drug lord. This incident sparked a decade of bloody battle between the corrupt police force and the favela drug dealers. Anderson Sa, a Vigario native who saw his first deadly street violence at age 10, deals with this harsh reality through AfroReggae. In response to the police killing of one of their own, Grupo AfroReggae made a video showing police brutality to a throbbing beat.

AfroReggae is a nonviolent flowering of Afro-Brazilian culture through dance, theatre and popular percussion-fuelled reggae bands. "Music is an instrument of change," says one of the AfroReggae founders. The drug lords even began to send their own kids to the AfroReggae programs. Eventually they even created a program that reached out to the cops too, who were encouraged to form their own theatre group and band.

Favela Rising is a film about finding a miracle where it is least expected.

RACE IS A FOUR LETTER WORD

SOBAZ BENJAMIN

Sobaz Benjamin's documentary, Race is a Four Letter Word, challenges everyone to take a closer look at who we are and how we see ourselves and others in our surroundings.

Canada is a strong country that boasts that we are the most multicultural nation in the world and is a prime example for racial harmony; or so we may think until we meet Camille Turner and Tim Dunn. Camille and Tim are two Canadian citizens who live comfortably in their surroundings until they step outside their respective communities and are challenged by outside perceptions of what the face of Canada is.

Camille Turner, a Toronto-based black female performance artist has created the alter ego Miss Canadiana to combat the preconceived notions she faces. She tours the world, in costume, provoking an image of multicultural acceptance. On the other hand, Tim Dunn, is a 62-year-old white male who was adopted by a black family as an infant, and was raised by them until he 12 years old. He identifies with the African-Canadian heritage of his adoptive family up until the moment he is able to take off the mask he has worn for years and embrace the preconceived notion of what he should be.

While interviewing Camille and Tim, Benjamin's documentary takes a personal turn when the filmmaker realizes that he too has a mask of his own. He must find a way to relinquish his mask and embrace his unique identity for the sake of his own descendants.

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Sobaz Benjamin has worked in all aspects of film and TV production. His anti-racism PSAs for the Racism: Stop It! campaign placed in the top 10 for the 2005 national competition. In 2004, he won the National Film Board of Canada's prestigious Reel Diversity Competition. Race is a Four Letter Word is his most recent project.

SUNSET BOLLYWOOD

KOMAL TOLANI

The term 'Where are They Now?' has become synonymous with Hollywood has-beens and stories of former stars. Sunset Bollywood captures the unique Indian perspective and documents the mega-star system that has crashed and burned for three one-time hugely popular heroes of Bollywood. The industry has had many superstars come and go and this interesting perspective highlights the depths of depression some actors reach when they are unable to transition from Bollywood to anything else. From the social elite to the social despair, from the limelight to lights out, Sunset Bollywood weaves together a complex story about how the largest film industry in the world shows no mercy and how destiny plays a pivotal role in everyone's success.

The film features Kumar Gaurav, Rahul Roy and Bhagyashree.

THE TORONTO RAP PROJECT

RICHARD BUDMAN

The Toronto Rap Project takes an inside look at the independent urban music scene in Toronto. It is blended with elements of music videos and it journeys into diverse neighbourhoods in Toronto during a year when guns, rap and hate crime were on everyone's mind. Director Richard Budman spend weeks upon weeks in communities that are classified as underdeveloped or lower socio-economic neighbourhoods.

He follows elected officials as they go out into these communities to do their electoral duties, spewing rhetoric among buzzing news camera. He speaks with young urban males who are both seen as gangsters and artists. He also speaks to people on the street who openly contribute their thoughts on the matter. In all, what develops is an open and honest documentary that engages the audience on the topic of gangsta rap and the negative attention it receives that overshadows the many positive elements of a complex hip hop culture.

Does rap or media glamorization of violence play any part in influencing crime on the streets of Toronto? One may reflect on the real-life stories of Tupac, Notorious B.I.G or even to a greater extent 50 Cent, where large corporations have branded their names for all the hype that can be marketed. But it may be necessary, as we see in The Toronto Rap Project to consider where we lay blame. Many hip hop artists need to draw from their experiences but as they do, one thing continues to plague the mind — which came first, the chicken or the egg?

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

Richard Budman directed Life Network's critically acclaimed documentary series, Hounds, about professional autograph collectors. Budman's next project was Shera's Story, about a teenage girl who visited the Nazi concentration camps of Poland where her family perished. Budman's love of urban music inspired The Toronto Rap Project.

WOMAN WITH A VIDEO CAMERA

GEETHA J

Woman With a Video Camera is an experiment in montage, clearly inspired by the 1928 Russian classic by Dzigo Vertov, Man with a Movie Camera, which was a fascinating combination of image building and nation building and showed the cameraman as a heroic participant in the currents of Soviet life. Jayaraman's homage takes place in another part of the world (Kerala, India) and focuses on a different gender (female), but produces the same results. The idea behind the two films is to provoke the mind in a whole new process of looking and being looked at from the perspective of gender.

How does the movie camera look at the female body? How does it create meaning? What does it mean to be looked at? How does the way the camera sees the female body turn into the technological manifestation of the male gaze that entraps women?

Woman With a Video Camera is a critical film essay that discusses traditional cinematographic theory in which the action of looking is associated with men while the passive act of watching has been identified with women. Using an editing style that creates a continual contrast between the ways the different sexes see, and a rich and complex musical score that transforms a docu-psychodrama into visual poetry, Jayaraman has made a name for herself in India's male dominated film industry.

Programmed by: Kirk Cooper

This unique and imaginative film brings awareness to America's Native heritage by envisioning a world in which Indigenous words surround us. Director Jason Lujan replaces existing signs in an urban environment with Indigenous languages and in doing so, reminds us that even in multicultural cities, America's Indigenous people are sometimes left out of the mix.

AMMA

Amma is the story of a woman's emotional rebirth and reconciliation with her past. It showcases the interconnectedness of the human experience and how the body may repress painful memories only to be reawakened and subconsciously triggered by similar experiences in the present.

Andrew Burrows-Trotman graduated from the University of Toronto with a BA in English and history. He attended film workshops at the Canadian Film Centre, L.I.F.T and Ottawa's Summer Institute of Film. His screenplay, The Great Commission, was directed by Rockmond Dunbar and aired on the Showtime Network in 2004. He's currently working on his first feature screenplay, Darky.

APPLES AND INDIANS

As a young boy, filmmaker Lorne Olson was told Indians were like apples — red on the outside, white on the inside. Ironically, it was that notion that sent him on a long journey to find out who he was. Throughout his life, he has lived with identifiers like Métis, half-breed, Oji-Cree, Indian, Native, Aboriginal, and so on. Apples and Indians is a whimsical and profound five-minute ride that sees Lorne speeding through decades in search of his true identity.

Lorne Olson was raised on the Brokenhead Ojibway First Nation and credits his early love of documentaries with leading him to pursue filmmaking. Currently, he works as a Junior Researcher at APTN National News. Apples and Indians is Lorne's first short film.

BIG GIRL

In this tale of modern family matters, mishaps and politics, an interesting jousting match begins when nine-year-old Josephine gives Mom's new boyfriend the cold shoulder. Complimented with musical tracks from Arts and Crafts artist Feist, this short was selected as the best short film of the Toronto International Film Festival in 2005.

Renuka Jeyapalan attended the Canadian Film Centre's Directors' Lab and graduated from the University of Toronto with degrees in biochemistry, English and cinema studies. She has made several award-winning short films including Sunday Afternoon, Baggage and Sing for Your Supper.

Throughout the course of a day, he grows from a boy to a man by having to decide what it is to do the right thing — and recognize his own, flawed humanity.

DAVID

Set in Mexico, David begins with a chance encounter between two men. The strangers find unexpected ways of communicating through messages and games. As the evening progresses, their bond grows stronger. Director Roberto Fiesco tenderly avoids sensationalizing or passing judgment on the relationship between his protagonists. Instead, the film does what so few films dare to do by depicting a union that does not fit into our conventional expectations. Ultimately, it exposes a brief moment when two lonely men find a way to connect.

Roberto Fiesco graduated from the Centro Universitario Estudio de Cinematograficos (CUEC-UNAM) and the Escuela Nacional de Arte Teatral. He is an accomplished producer and filmmaker, and has directed about 10 plays and operas, presented at the National Centre for the Arts in Mexico. ## EL DIA MENOS PENSADO (One of these Days)

Director Rodrigo Ordonez asks a bleak and captivating question: What would happen if the largest city in the world ran out of clean water? A mature couple faces the threat of losing their home while defending their last drops of water at gunpoint. Through their eyes, we see an intriguing juxtaposition of themes: slick confidence versus disturbing desperation.

GOD'S HAND

Graffiti art has been plagued with stereotypes and resistance since its popularity has grown within hip/hop culture. Born in Columbus, Ohio, Sai Varadan spent his early childhood in Pennsylvania before moving to Brooklyn, NY, as a teenager. He attended the Pratt Institute of the Arts' High School Program for Gifted Artists. He transferred to the Tisch School of the Arts at New York University where he completed his thesis film, God's Hand, in late 2004. MARJOUN AND THE
 FLYING HEADSCARF

Like most adolescent girls, Marjoun is struggling with her sexual identity. However, her coming-of-age is complicated by her divided loyalties between Arab heritage and the North American social pressures that surround her. Will Marjoun be able to find a balance between the two different sets of cultural expectations? Or will the series of trials that she faces break her spirit? Director Susan Youssef poetically juxtaposes her young protagonist's struggle with brief fantasy moments, which reveal her inner thoughts. Ultimately, the film's power lies in its ability to explore a social and religious issue on such a personal level.

Susan Youssef is currently working on Habibi Rasak Kharban, a feature to be shot in Gaza in fall 2006. A modern retelling of an ancient Sufi parable, it explores contemporary Islamic civilization and relations with Israel. It will be the first feature shot in Gaza in more than 10 years.

MEMORY IN BONES

"Every step I take is with my ancestors; my memory in my bones — urban and rural live within me — I am who I am, a strong Indian woman." With this declaration, director Gail Maurice takes off on an exploration of what it means to be an Aboriginal woman in modern-day Canada. The film poetically looks at how our roots and our culture make us who we are. As diverse as our country is, many Canadians have found themselves considering these same questions. How does our heritage influence our day to day life?

Gail Maurice wrote, directed and produced her first video, Little Indians, in 2004. She recently finished writing her feature script, Blood Lines, and is now co-writing and researching a new project, Cop Killers, with Leda Serene Films. Her company is Assini Productions.

MESKANAHK (My Path)

This deeply personal video narrative is told from the point of view of a young "half-breed" man. The film captures him at a turning point in his life as he journeys off the Cree reserve that he has always known. As he faces his coming of age, a barrage of questions, regrets and fears are raised. Will he always be labelled as an other? As he tests one "path" after another, in search of his own identity, he is left to wonder if his parents forgive him for running away. Anyone who has ever found themselves feeling like an outsider and struggling to find a place where they belong will immediately identify with this young man's journey. The film captures what it means to question your identity and ultimately acts as one man's declaration of pride toward his Cree heritage.

Kevin Burton is Cree from God's Lake Narrows First Nation in Manitoba. He completed the Aboriginal Film and Television Production (AFTP) training program at Capilano College in Vancouver. As a Cree language speaker, Burton intends to utilize his gift to help preserve and promote this language through media.

MR. MERGLER'S GIFT

The girl sits at the piano and plays the opening bars of Für Elise. Daniel Mergler has heard the Beethoven bagatelle countless times over the decades, but this is different. He listens with surprise, and delight lights up the old man's eyes.

The young pianist is Xin Ben, the nine-year-old daughter of Chinese immigrants. Fate has brought her to Mr. Mergler, a music teacher whose career is drawing to a close.

Mr. Mergler's Gift is their remarkable story—a moving account of a student and her mentor, and a lyrical homage to the transcendent power of music.

Beverly Shaffer is an Oscar-winning filmmaker. Her film credits include The Way It Is, Discussions in Bioethics: Who should decide? and To a Safer Place. Her most recent film, Just a Wedding, is a docu-drama involving Nadia DeFranco, the courageous girl from the film I'll Find a Way, now aged 27.

MUSLIM 101

In the wake of worldwide unrest over the publication of cartoons offensive to Muslim sensibilities, Muslim 101 is an irreverent take on the stereotypes America has for Muslims. Director Usame Tunagur sets out to explain to his fellow Muslim brethren how they are expected to behave in the eyes of westerners and the results are funny and poignant. And of course, there is also some explaining to do when it comes to the strangeness of westerners!

Usame Tunagur received his BA in broadcasting and mass media from Temple University in Philadelphia. Currently, he's pursuing an MFA at Ohio University's School of Film.

PROMENADES

Singapore has a certain charm about it: the tropical weather, the bustle of an Asian metropolis, the opulence of a world commercial centre, the harmonious coexistence of different races through four official languages. Promenades is a clever piece that delves into the psyche of people from Singapore. Using a phone-in radio show as the device, this little gem effectively brings out what Singaporeans think make Singapore special. Not to be missed.

RECUERDO DEL MAR (Reminiscence)

Three minutes and 30 seconds is all it takes director Max Zunino to hauntingly stamp a lasting image on his audience's mind. Recuerdo del mar (Reminiscence) recreates a child's first contact with the sea. It is one he will never forget. A delicate exercise in simplicity, the entire film takes place in one, long shot, and truly demonstrates the impact that a single image can have. Watch carefully as more and more is revealed until we are left with an unexpected finish to our visit to the sea. The ocean's peaceful tranquility is turned against us to create an increasingly lonely and tense landscape. Zunino proves that sometimes all it takes is a single moment caught on film to tell an entire story. Just as the young protagonist's innocence is unfairly stolen, the viewer's own perception of the beautiful sea is turned upside down in this beautifully-shot film. Don't be fooled by its length, this film will last with you long after the curtain falls.

Max Zunino studied Communication Sciences at Universidad del Nuevo Mundo UNUM. He has worked as an assistant with directors such as Jorge Fons and Jaime Humberto Hermosillo.

SA/X is a comical mock-documentary, set in Johannesburg that follows the journey of Kim Smart, a fair-skinned African girl who dares to look outside of her burglar-proof suburban world. The film inter-cuts with simple narrative and also documentary-style interview clips of random 20-something South Africans exploring their concerns and values. The film was made by students of the SA School of Motion Picture Medium and Live Performance and was unofficially selected to participate in the South African spotlight at Cannes 2005

Tiberius Bharat, better known as T.B. is 11 years old, lonely and very shy. Traumatized into silence by the death of his father and the sudden re-marriage of his mother cause T.B. to practically clam. Director Maninder Chana takes a delicate look at how one boy deals with his inner and outer demons. Break out performances by group of wonderful child actors give a charm to this film. Mixed with poetic music and subtle comedic undertones this is a film for all of those people who have had to deal with their problems in their own unique way.

Maninder Chana has written and directed several films including Sammy's Dilemma and Mohandas & Bette: A Love Story. He recently signed a feature film deal. ## PATRICK ROSS

Convicted gangster turned artist Patrick Ross shares his transformation in this intimate short documentary produced by Manitoba Aboriginal filmmaker Ervin Chartrand. Patrick Ross is a beautifully made portrait of an artist who has found peace with his past while trying to wake up a world in slumber through challenging societal taboos in his art. The courage he displays is juxtaposed with the stylish and intimate cinematography that makes a larger-than-life character all the more charming. This project is part of the NFB/CBC's First Stories program, which aims to encourage Aboriginal filmmakers in the Prairies.

Ervin Chartrand began his career in film and TV three years ago when he enrolled in Winnipeg's Aboriginal Broadcast Training Initiative. Since then, he has worked as an editor and a Puppet Wrangler for the successful children's TV series, Tipi Tales. In 2005, he directed his first two short films, 504938C and Patrick Ross. He is currently working on his next film.

WESTBOUND/EASTBOUND

Westbound/Eastbound is an experimental music video that defies the norm currently broadcast in the media by focusing on peace and togetherness. While sex, violence, and racism continue to pollute our television screens, this video this video shows West to East, WE are all human beings.

BY MY SIDE

Recent Canadian Urban Music Awards winner, Panamanian-Canadian Fito Blanco brings his high energy style of Reggaeton to Canada. Director Jason Ebanks also truly captures the force and fun that is Reggaeton. Fun and energetic, this video will make you move.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO HERE

In this video, directed by Richie Mehta, the human voice (Jugular "The Human Beatbox") is challenged by the drum (Gurpreet "The Tabla Guy" Chana), for a show down of talents. Shot in black and white, it has the feel of an old time western, with east Asian sounds. A "new style" Eastern, shall we say.

STRUGGLIN'

Somalian-Canadian K'Naan's video for Soobax won last year's ReelWorld Film Festival music video award. Once again K'Naan brings us his story of struggle, this time from the streets of Toronto as captured by actor/director Charles Officer. The video is not only a personal account of K'Naan and his fellow Somalians, but can also reflect the general struggle of the immigration story.

SMOKIN' LOUNGE

Director Mateo Guez gives us a beautifully and stylistically shot video and short film of nude models, beauty and fashion, surrounded by the smoky and sultry voice of Molly Johnson.

PUKHI

Director Shannon Kohli brings us the fun and energetic sound of new Canadian artist Harj Uppal to the screen. Harj Uppal is fast becoming North America's first lady of Punjabi music combining the tradition with the new. She is ready to burst onto the international music scene with her debut album. This is the first video from that release.

I'M BACK

Director's Marie Horodyski and Dwight Phipps bring us a fun hip-hop video with Fin-S and his crew. One unique factor to this video is it's not the same old bling and babes video but just a good time among friends doing what everyone seems to be doing lately, playing poker.

GOKAN

Director Tony Manolikakis show us the intensity and endurance that Taiko drummers endure during a live performance. Kiyoshi Nagata is a Japanese Canadian Taiko drummer who formed his own ensemble in Toronto after studying in Japan with some of the masters.

DOLLY*DOLLY

Dolly is a groovy tune that required funky visuals to complement the catchy groove. Director Mohit Rajhans uses cinematic sampling by combining footage from the classic Bollywood film, Gumnaam. The video has played internationally and is the first single from this Canadian band.

IF I COULD ONLY

Jamaican Artist Yogie (aka Courtney Morrison) brings an almost soulful sound to his dancehall reggae track. If I Could Only is for sure for the lovers. Award-winning director Michael P. Douglas matches the mood of the song perfectly.

GET FREE

Combining live action with animation, colour with black and white, and archival and current footage, hip-hop diva NEB Luv (formerly with Rick James and Warren G) performs her smooth groove in this film noir music video with a story and a heart.

DEEWANA

This is a truly fun video combining Bageshree Vaze's amazing dancing abilities and fantastic voice with a fun and funny animated story in the background. Come enjoy all the wonders of this video as Bageshree go to many lengths to escape the overbearing Sultan's advances. A top-five video on MTV in India.

I GIVE TO YOU

Luca Fante is the next Italian superstar following the likes of Eros Ramazotti and Andrea Bocelli. He recently won the Canadian Idol-like new talent showcase Stelle Emergenti (Rising Stars) on Rai 2 International. Directed by Dean Bernard, the video was shot in Italy. According to the artist and director, the song is a story of love. That is a true recount of the video as well.

COMERCIANTE

Comerciante is the first single by Adonis Puentes. The Cuban born artist now resides in Canada and was one half of the award-winning group, The Puentes Brothers. The song is pure salsa, a music that is fun, energetic and sexy. And according to this video, if you are the singer in a salsa band, you always get the girl. Kevin DeFreitas' vision on just how to get that girl is bang on.

WHALER'S LULLABYE

Susan Aglukark has long been considered the queen of Inuit song. Whether she is singing in her Native tongue or in English, her voice is purely captivating. This video, directed by Margaret Malandruccolo, visually brings Susan's song and voice to light as it is both soft and beautiful and stays with you

THANK YOU GOD

War Party (Rex Smallboy, Cyntia Smallboy and Thane Saddleback) are part of a whole new generation of "Native Music." Hip hop has recently been the native musical voice of the new generation borrowing some of same themes of early American Hip Hop; struggle and protest. This video and song, however, acknowledges the positive and the title says it all. Thank You God is directed by Bob Brooks.

EXOTIC SUGAR

Exotic Sugar is a fun, colourful video that takes place in a magical, funky candyland. The video lends some ideas from Willy Wonka with giant sugar trees and floors made of lollipops. Exotic Sugar features Bobby Dreadful and Garfield Cooljuice performing on a giant rotating lollipop stage with their band The Breastfed Superheroes and the hot Ruckus Dancers strutting their stuff. Bobby Dreadful also directs.

LOUP BLANC/MIAM MAIKAN

Innu singer/songwriter Florent Vollant was once one half of the Native Band Kashtin. Director Patrick Huard brings great imagery to this song with many of its elements going head to head. First off, the song is sung in two languages, Innu and French. Also Florent squares off against a rival "Alpha Male" to lead the pack and fight for the affection of a woman, much the same way wolves do on the wild. However, unlike the wild, in the human world, it seems as if the woman is the one leading the pack.

OMNEYA

Maryem Tollar is a Canadian singer of Egyptian background. After going back to Egypt to learn Arabic music from some of the countries leading teachers and musicians, Maryem and husband Ernie Tollar formed Mernie. Maryem sing in both English and Arabic. This song however is sung in English it would seem so most of its audience could understand the meaning and beauty of its title "Omneya (Wish)." Omneya you see is the name of Maryem's daughter.
